A handshake at the entrance, an embrace beyond the gate
A candle flickering in time to a metronome. A plumbline set according to the convictions of one’s soul. A movement becomes a monument. A monument is a monologue.
the wave of the hand, utterances